Fr. Gannon To Speak On "Maryland Day"

By Carroll Herbert

Tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. Evergreen Campus will mark the setting for one of the most outstanding events to be held in the history of this college, the first Annual Maryland Day program. The program will be highlighted by ground-breaking ceremonies for the new Engineering Physics building and the presentation of the Andrew White Medals.

The day's activities will begin with the ground-breaking. Father Beatty, S. J., Governor Tawes, and Mayor Grady will turn the first spade of sqd. Pershing Rifles Company G-15 of the National Society of Pershing Rifles will provide the colors, color bearers and colorguards. They will also provide a guard of honor for the visiting dignitaries. They will be the only college organization presented in the ceremonies.

Music will be supplied by The Old Guard Fife and Drum Corps from Fort Myer, Virginia. This group of thirty men strong, under the command of 1st Lt. Donald G. Mullins, is composed of soldiers who, in addition to their regular duties, have formed this band. The men will dress in authentic costumes of the Revolutionary War days.

Welcoming Address

At 11 a.m., there will be a procession of the faculty, followed by the invocation by Fr. Galvin, S. J. Fr. Beatty, S. J., will give a welcome address and then award the Andrew White medals.

Following this will be remarks by the Governor and Mayor. Then the presentation, "A Day in the Life of a Colonial Soldier," will be presented by The Old Guard Fife and Drum Corps.

Address

Fr. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., will then give an address entitled, "Jesuits and Freedom of Worship in America." Father has been Dean of St. Peter's College, President of Fordham University, Director of Manresa, Rector of Loyola High School and Regis High School, Pastor of St. Ignatius, and now Superior of the Jesuit Missionary House.

Father Beatty will give the closing remarks followed by a recessional and a luncheon in the Student Union Building.

Tomorrow's Ceremonies Include Presentation Of 5 White Medals

By Carroll Herbert

On March 25, as a part of Loyola's first annual Maryland Day celebration, the college will honor five men by presenting them with the newly-struck Andrew White Medal.

The five recipients will be Brother Gabriel Cecilian, F.S.C.; Mr. Samuel M. Hecht; Mr. Patrick J. Roche; the Honorable Morris A. Soper, and the Most Reverend James E. Walsh,

M.M.

Spirit of Father White

The newly created medal will be awarded annually to outstanding citizens whose contributions to the general welfare reflect the spirit and zeal of Father Andrew White, the first Jesuit priest in Maryland.

Jesuits In Free State

Loyola College President, Rev. Vincent F. Beatty, S. J.,

Bro. Gabriel Cecilian, F.S.C., recipient of the Andrew White Medal.

recently said, "It is appropriate that we join the citizens of Maryland in observing the founding of the colony. Since these early days members of the Society of Jesus have been teaching and administering to the people of the Free State. By the presentation of the Andrew White Medal we hope to provide a stimulus to imitation for those who come after us in making the State of Maryland what it ever aims to be: the home of upright, free, and cultivated men."

Educator and Administrator

Brother Gabriel will be honored as an educator and the administrator of Calvert Hall High School. During his thirty-five years as a religious brother he has taught at a number of high schools through out the country. In 1950 he was appointed principal of Calvert Hall, the first Christian Brothers school in the United States.

Baltimore Business

Samuel M. Hecht is a prominent Baltimore businessman and the Chairman of the Board of the Hecht Company. He is also well-known in Baltimore for his civic, charitable, and educational work. Mr. Hecht is a graduate of the Johns Hopkins University and was a captain in the Air Force during World War II.

Vice President

Mr. Patrick J. Roche was born (Cont. on p. 3, col. 3)

Senior Math Majors Obtain NSF Recognition

For the second successive year, Loyola College has been honored by the presentation of a National Science Foundation Fellowship to one of its outstanding students. The award this year has been won by Anthony C. Hughes, a senior majoring in mathematics.

In addition, Stephen A. Pretl, another senior math major, received an Honorable Mention in the annual nation-wide competition, the results of which were officially announced on March 15.

Tony Hughes and Steve Pretl, senior math majors, recently received NSF recognition.

Thomas F. Dwyer, a '60 graduate who majored in engineering-physics, has been awarded a renewal on the NSF Fellowship he won last year. Tom is continuing his studies at Princeton University.

Worth $1600

This Fellowship is worth approximately $1600, in addition to the perscribed tuition. The grant won by Hughes applies only to his first year at graduate school; however, he may compete for an additional Fellowship at the end of that time.

Both Steve and Tony have compiled enviable college careers. Tony, with a 4 year QPA over 3.9, is a member of ASN, Who's Who and the swimming team. Steve lists the Yearbook, Glee Club, Math Club, Who's Who and ASN among his activities, holding the office of Glee Club treasurer.

Mr. Samuel Hecht, recipient of the Andrew White Medal.

Editorials

White, Jesuits, Maryland

To make known to those students who are not aware of the importance of the Jesuits in the early history of Colonies, we will here recount a brief sketch of Father Andrew White's connection with the establishment of Jesuits in Maryland and with the annual celebration of Maryland Day.

On the feast of the Annunciation of Our Lady, March 25, 1634, Father White and two Jesuit companions came to Maryland with Lord Baltimore on the "Ark" and the "Dove" which landed at St. Clement's Island on the Potomac River. There Father offered the first Mass on record in Maryland.

Few people realize that education in the colonies was practically non-existent except for the instructions of the Jesuits. Father White composed a grammar, dictionary and catechism in the language of the Indians, being the first Englishman to give grammatical form to the native languages. In their knowledge of art, science and literature, and culture in general, few could rival the Jesuits. Wherever possible they conducted parish schools and high schools and eventually colleges and universities. The church grew, and today, Father White is styled The Apostle of Maryland.

Last January, The Andrew White Student Center was dedicated. This year the college has struck a new medal, The Andrew White Medal. Tomorrow, March 25, 1961, three hundred and twenty-seven years later during the Maryland Day Ceremony at Loyola College, ground will be broken for the Engineering Physics Building and the Andrew White Medal will be presented to five distinguished citizens, chosen for this honor because their lives exemplify the spirit and zeal of that first Maryland missionary, Fr. Andrew White.

Thus, in designating March 25 as Maryland Day, commemoration is given not only to the political, but also the religious origins of the "Free State" of Maryland.

the Watchdog

When sufficiently stimulated, the human mind can become the harbour for much profound and soul-searching thought. Our mind is now in such a state over a question which, if answered, can raise one to the very heights of rapturous fulfillment from even the deepest pits of stagnation. A question which can soothe the confusion and chaos now possessing our troubled thoughts. Enfin: Why did Benny the Fan go to WITH?

For those of you who are wondering about what will occur on April 16, permit us to announce (trumpet interlude): the senior sponsored "Folk Singing Festival" to be held right here on that date. Make a note of that one, Charlie!

We've been warned not to be too funny this week. It seems that the Watchdog's humour is conflicting with John Feller's column.

If you think that Quentin's column is sarcastic at times, allow us to inform you that his favorite song is "Mack the Knife."

Seriously though, John's column is pointed. It matches his head.

Every week this column goes out to our service-men all over the country. This week, we are sending it especially to our armed forces in Essex. Good hunting, boys.

This could never happen in a future Pysch class:

We would like to produce this little drama in the near future, if we thought that Charlie could master the lines.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

I would like to report one important manifestation of true school spirit. On February 25 we held a Scholarship Entrance Examination for 399 aspirants. I asked Dick Hauer of the Green and Grey if he could get me seven men to help with the proctoring.

February 25 was foggy, cold and full of rain; but eleven, not seven, members of the Green and Grey showed up promptly at 8:30 a.m., without any promise of material reward, and worked until 2:00 p.m. in the afternoon.

They worked efficiently and intelligently and made a valuable contribution to the smooth running of the examination. I want here to express publicly my sincere thanks for their unselfish co-operation in a wearisome task for the good of Loyola College.

'Racket' Squad

Don Torres

Every year as the spring athletic season gets into full swing, one of the most familiar faces seen on the center tennis court is that of team captain, Don Torres. A greatly-respected player in the Mason-Dixon Conference, Don has been one of the Hound's top singles men throughout four varsity seasons, as well as competing in many city-wide tournaments. The doubles combination of Don and his older brother, Bill, has been a highly rated one in Baltimore tennis circles in the past few years.

Torres Scores

Tennis, however, has not been allowed to interfere with classroom performance, as Don's name has consistently appeared on the Dean's List, and well above the 3.0 Q.P.A. in the senior listings. Last year, for example, pressure from his studies as an Engineering-Physics major forced him to drop from the tennis team after the first third of the season.

But tennis certainly does not constitute the entire range of extra-curricular activity for the quietly affable senior from Windsor Hills. As well as being a member of the page-layout committee for the 1961 Evergreen Annual, Don has been a participant in the activities of the Glee Club during all four of his years at Loyola. He has also been a member of the Physics and Radio Clubs in his sophomore and junior years, and is one of eight seniors in the Ethics Seminar.

His Next Serve

Don, who during the first semester of this year was honored by being included in "College Students Who's Who," has no plans for graduate study. A government or industrial job in engineering appears to be in store for him after graduation.

Triple threat Torres takes time from tennis to tackle tedious texts.

ENGINEERING-PHYSICS BUILDING—An artist's conception of the proposed $1.5 million Engineering-Physics Building, to be constructed where the present senior parking lot is located, and to include 17 classrooms and 9 labs.

New Building Adds Depth To Program

In their 1951 report the Education Committee of the Engineers' Council for Professional Development stated that there was "a need for a general strengthening of the foundation courses in the basic and applied sciences."

Loyola College agreed with this committee's report and believed that a liberal arts college provided an ideal place to put this type of program into effect. Loyola College also believed that they had a responsibility to offer this type of program to young men in the Baltimore area. Accordingly, in 1955, aided by an $80,000 grant from the Raskob foundation, Loyola added an Engineering-Physics Department.

Basic Science

Loyola's program in Physics-Engineering is characterized by an emphasis on basic science rather than on mere technical know-how or in narrowly specialized fields. The primary aim of the program is to provide the student with a sound basis for further training in engineering either in graduate school or in the field.

Humanities

In addition to training in the sciences the course also emphasizes broad training in the humanities and the liberal arts. The program includes English, foreign languages, philosophy, psychology, and theology.

New Building

The new Physics-Engineering Building will house seventeen classrooms and nine labs and will mark the beginning of a new era in engineering training at Loyola.

Harbor Lights

"The Miracle Worker" is coming to Ford's on April 17, and this will close out their season.

At the Lyric tomorrow night Herbert Grossman will conduct the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra in a program of all George Gershwin music. This will be the last of the orchestra's popular-priced series. This is an incentive in itself to go, but even more so, Miss Virginia Reinecke, one of the most accomplished pianists in this area and Loyola College's Glee Club instructor, will be the guest soloist.

Erroll Garner is at the Lyric tonight at 8:30, and if you don't have your tickets yet, you had better hurry.

So much for the stage this weekend. The Lyric will be presenting "A Session with Charles Laughton" on April 12 and Andres Segovia, world's greatest guitarist, on April 18.

Well, if this isn't enough, or your date has already seen some of the aforementioned, then just ad lib; this is more fun anyway.

Judge Soper will be honored for his distinguished career of sixty years as an attorney and judge. He is currently a U.S. Circuit Court judge.

The story of Bishop James Walsh is well known to all Catholics. Bishop Walsh will be honored for his heroic stand against the Chinese Communists. His brother will accept the award for him.

Let Me At 'Em

By John G. Feller

Campus politicos have been scurrying about all week getting signatures on petitions, as well as promises and other pledges of support. Behind the outward displays and loyalty, the most prominent feature of these campaigns is the back-stabbing. Empty promises and behind-the-back "conferences" have become common. Supposedly, it's the thing to do; but, in my opinion, such tactics have no place at Evergreen. Promises are made to be kept in spite of what Abe Lincoln said.

P. R. Predicament

One of the biggest, noisiest, and most unpredictable races on campus is that for P. R. Captain. The leading contenders for the top spot are juniors Joe Martin and Dennie Homberg. Supporting Martin is the Moose party or faction, as well as a number of other impressive cadet officers and N.C.O.'s. On the opposing ticket, Dennie Homberg has mustered support from a large number of freshmen and sophomores. But the campaign is far from over and at this point anything can go. Whatever the outcome in this or any other contest, I hope that the losers have enough conviction and courage to support their duly elected officers.

Junior Class

As far as politics in the junior class go, it's a real mess. No one knows who anyone is really supporting. The candidates are signing each other's petitions and pledging their affection and esteem. It's a real mutual admiration society.

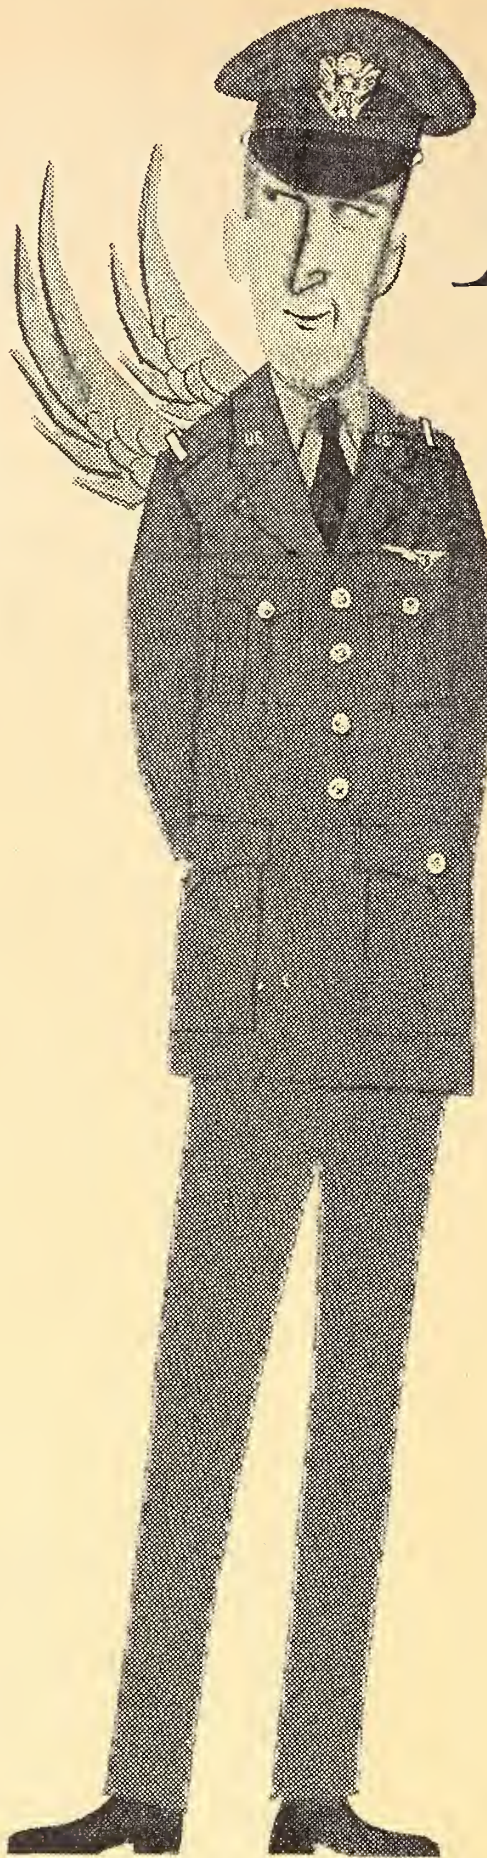

I Salute John Healy

There's not too much anyone can say about John Healy. Everyone knows John, or nearly everyone. The old Irishman will be sorely missed come this June.

Certainly, it can be said without hesitation that John Healy is one of the most colorful and most spirited students on campus.

John was one of the originators of the Green and Gray Club; has been manager of the B-Ball team for four years; has been in various class offices; and is at present a member of the Student Council. The best word to describe John's four years at Loyola is controversial. John as a matter of principle has always been on the other side, the side of the underdog and usually the losing side. E.g. Nebbish No. 2 supported Dick Nixon. Yet, this is just what Loyola College needs and I hope he can be replaced. In recognition of his contribution to Loyola, Nebbish No. 1 proudly salute John Healy.

BY THE WAY: Mr. Kammel's recent publication was so successful that he plans another in the near future: "Gazoogle: To Be, or Not To Be?"

Do all Air Force Officers have Wings?

Decidedly not. In fact most executive jobs are on the ground. Of course, all officers may apply for pilot and navigator training if they meet the eligibility requirements. There will always be a need for piloted aircraft. And it is foreseeable that in your working lifetime, there will be piloted spacecraft—piloted and navigated by Air Force officers.

But right now, there is also a big future for college-trained Air Force officers on the ground. New and exciting technical jobs are opening up. Important administrative positions must be filled as World War II officers move into retirement.

How can you—a college student—become an Air Force officer? First, there's Air Force ROTC. Then for college graduates, men and women in certain fields, there is Officer Training School. The graduate of its three-month course wins a commission as a second lieutenant. Other ways are the Navigator Training program, and the Air Force Academy.

Some benefits that go with being an Air Force officer. Starting salary plus allowances compare with the average in equivalent civilian jobs. Then there's free medical and dental care, thirty-day vacation, the chance to win graduate degrees at Air Force expense, and liberal retirement provisions.

No, Air Force officers do not need wings to move up. There's plenty doing on the ground. Perhaps you could be one of these young executives in blue. Ask your local Air Force Recruiter. Or write, Officer Career Information, Dept. SC13, Box 7608, Washington 4, D.C., if you want further information about the navigator training or Officer Training School programs.

Karczewski, Matz, Prodey Designated D. M. S.

On March 7 of this year the Department of Military Science and Tactics announced the appointment of Peter J. Karczewski, Stanford Matz, and Richard M. Prodey as Distinguished Military Students. These three senior ROTC officers received this honor on the basis of their outstanding performance during the last semester.

In order to be designated a Distinguished Military Student, the candidate must exhibit leadership, a good moral character, and an aptitude for military subjects.

Leadership

To exhibit the quality of leadership, the department generally requires the student to have been a non-commissioned officer in his sophomore year and to perform well his duties in advanced ROTC.

The department also considers leadership as demonstrated by participation in extra-curricular activities, particularly military and athletic activities and the Student Council.

Character and Aptitude

The department also explained that they usually gain a good opinion of the students' moral character and aptitude through conversations with them and by observation of their performance.

(L. to r.) Stan Matz, Pete Karczewski and Dick Prodey were recently named Distinguished Military Students.

Baltimore Attorney Lectures On April 10

At 6:30 p.m., Monday, April 10 in the Milbrook Parlor, Mr. James Perrott, a well-known Baltimore attorney and faculty advisor to the Bellarmine Society will speak on "The Persuasive Aspects of Public Speaking." The lecture is opened to the prospective members and the students. Mr. Perrott's talk will be followed by a lecture by Mr. Michael McDermott, S.J., an instructor in Philosophy and assistant moderator, who will discuss "The Principles of Constructing a Logical Argument."

Spot News

Peabody Group

The students are reminded that the vocal group from the Peabody Institute will give a concert in Cohn Hall tonight at 8:30 p.m. All are invited, and the admission is free.

Villa Julie Here

On Sunday, April 9 the Loyola College Glee Club under the instruction of Miss Reinecke, will give a joint concert with Villa Julie College in Cohn Hall at 4:00 p.m. The admission is free. The program will consist of an early Mozart composition and selections from "My Fair Lady." All are invited to attend.

Yippee!!!

After the last class on Wednesday April 18, the Easter vacation will begin for the Loyola Day College students, and classes will be resumed on Wednesday, April 25. The faculty and students wish to extend their wishes for a happy and holy holiday season.

Fine Job

Congratulations to the Quarterly staff for an excellent Winter Issue.

In the Springtime

Students interested in summer jobs can obtain a booklet for $3.00. For more information see the News Editor.

"Ghosts" To Appear On Campus Apr. 7, 8

The Mask and Rapier Dramatic Society will present Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts" over the weekend of April 7 and 8. To be presented in Cohn Hall at 8:30 p.m., this will be their initial full length play for the second semester.

Cast in the role of the widowed Mrs. Alving is Barbara MacNamara, a senior from Mount Saint Agnes College. Portraying the role of "Oswald" will be Ed Conery. The remainder of the cast includes Ron Yakaitis as "Rev. Manders," Carol Goode who plays the maid "Regina" and Ed Slawski, who is "Jakob Engstrand," the maid's father.

The play deals with Mrs. Alving, a widow, who strives to preserve the reputation of her thought-to-be-honorable, deceased husband, solely for the benefit of her son, Oswald.

Revelation

In the course of the play, however, she reveals to Oswald that the maid, Regina, is the illegitimate daughter of his father. Throughout the play there is the constant interplay between the mother's attempt to uphold the honor of her dead husband and still not deceive Oswald.

As a play, "Ghosts" boasts one of the most absorbing plots ever conceived. On the stage it presents many challenges to both actors and audience. However, the director, John Synodinos, hopes to offer an engrossing production.

(L. to r.) Ed Slawski, Ron Yakaitis and Ed Conery fill the leading male roles in Ibsen's "Ghosts," to be held in Cohn Hall, April 7 and 8.

Conference Features Five Talks

The Twelfth Annual Series of Pre-Cana Conferences will begin on Sunday, April 9. This series consists of talks on marriage. It is intended primarily for couples who intend to marry within the year.

Several Talks

The talks will be: Sunday, April 9; "The Sacrament of Marriage as a Vocation," by Rev. John J. Scanlan, S.J.; Sunday, April 16, "The Civil and Canon Law of Marriage," by Rev. William M. Davish, S.J., and "The Moral Problems of Courtship and Marriage," by Rev. John J. Scanlan, S.J., Sunday, April 23; "The Doctor Talks on Marriage," by Dr. Charles Keegan for men and Dr. James Durkan for women, Sunday, April 30; "The Problems of Married Life and Their Solution," by a panel of four married couples.

For 4 Nights

All the talks will begin at 7:30 p.m. and be over by 9 p.m. with an intermission at midpoint. The talks will be held in room 201 in the Library Building. If you intend to come, please try to come to all four nights. While couples are preferred, singletons will not be excluded.

Campus Life

Bear With Us

After the construction of the new building begins, the parking situation on campus will be slightly modified. Parking from the Faculty House to Charles Street (including the Dell parking lot) will be discontinued. Parking in front of the gym and Student Center next to the athletic field will be for faculty only. Students must park in the neighborhood of the campus since there will be no student parking on campus.

A recent survey has shown that there are enough parking spaces available for students within a two block radius of the campus.

Quarterly Post

The Evergreen Quarterly needs the services of seven selected underclassmen who would be interested in assuming editorial positions on the staff as of next year.

Training for these post will begin with the preparation of the forthcoming Spring Issue. Anyone interested should contact Joe France or John Valentini immediately.

Local Talent

On Sunday, April 30 at 3:00 p.m. John Gardecki, a Loyola sophomore, will appear with the Gettysburg Symphony Orchestra conducted by Dr. William S. Hart. John will play Greig's Concerto in A Minor and tickets are $1 and can be obtained at the door of Morgan State College.

GREYHOUND SPORTS

By Dick Cooke

It has come to the attention of the Sports Staff that the establishment of a Loyola Day has been suggested. The date has been tentatively set for the first Friday and Saturday in May. Consisting of a series of intra-class track and field events, Loyola Day will provide a chance for the students who normally don't participate in the athletic program here at Evergreen to display their abilities.

The underlying purpose of Loyola Day is to bring the students back to the campus on the weekends. This is to be achieved by having the preliminaries on Friday and the run-offs or finals on Saturday. As the program stands now, the athletic events will be followed by a free banquet for all the participants and a dance to be held later in the evening.

Committee Formed

A committee has been formed in order to weigh the pros and cons of this suggestion and to take the proper measures in working out the finer details. A few of the committee members are Norm "Mole" Vit-rano, Bill Smuck, and Bob Schnock. The Sports Staff considers this venture well worth while and sincerely hopes that the Loyola student body will back the project. New ideas or suggestions concerning the proposed project will certainly be welcomed. Contact one of the above mentioned committee members for further information.

Netmen Ready

Aided by the return of four let-termen from last year's team, tennis coach Vince Colimore has his sights set on a very successful season. Despite the loss of senior Jim Fowler under the four-year athletic eligibility rule, the Hounds have five singles players of almost equal capability. A battle for the sixth position seems to be shaping up between junior Bill Knoche and soph Barry Tillman.

The number one doubles combination will probably be team captain Don Torres and senior Tad Carper, with Jim Mohler and frosh Al Cummings in the second spot. Dave Mulrooney, the winningest player on last year's squad, will hook up with the sixth man to round out the line-up.

Goalie Page Fried

Hound Nine Hosts Bowdoin Next Week

This Tuesday and Thursday, March 28th and 30th, the Hound baseball team will host Bowdoin College of Brunswick, Maine in two afternoon games. The visitors, perennially one of the best small college nines in the East, feature a powerful attack which will provide a stiff trial for the Hound hurlers.

First Team Seen Taking Shape

The Loyola squad, including the hurlers, has been hampered by bad weather. The Hounds have not played as a team as yet and could use much more work together. The infield combination, which shapes up as Charlie

Stick Lineup Appears Set

Coach Wenzel has chosen first year men for four first string slots this year. Tom Milligan, Jock Rempel, Jack Schaeffer and John Stewart have earned starting berths on Loyola's Lacrosse squad. Milligan and Schaeffer are defensemen, while Rempel and Stewart will line up at midfield.

There is some doubt in the coach's mind as to veteran Jimmy Lamar's starting spot. Lamar, who made Honorable Mention All America, played attack last year. This season the scrappy speedster will start at midfield or attack.

With Lamar's position doubtful, the midfield shapes up with Pete Powley, John Stewart, and Jock Rempel. This season will be Captain Powley's last in a Green and Gray uniform.

The number one attack unit will be all veteran, consisting of sophs Marty Pilsch and Jay Hinkel and junior Mike Abromaitis.

Two of the four starting frosh have broken into the defense. Freshmen Milligan and Schaeffer will run beside soph Marty Quinn.

Paige Fried, who subbed on attack last year, will start as the Hound's number one goalie. Backing him up will be Bob Pisarski.

Rick Frampton

Track Opens This Monday

On Monday at 3 p.m., the Loyola trackmen will open their season at Towson State. Last year against the Teachers, the Hounds romped in the running contests, but in the field events it was a different story. At the conclusion of the weight throws and jumps, Loyola was down 25-3. Only the strength of the Hound runners put the meet in the win column for Loyola. The mile relay quartet climaxed a great comeback to cop the last event on the card, thus pulling out a 61-60 win.

This season, at least for this first meet, Loyola's runners, due to graduation losses and inclement weather, will not be as strong as last year's crew. This puts Green and Grey victory hopes squarely on the shoulders of the field men. Last year this would have spelled doom for the Hounds. However, this season's field men look to be the strongest and deepest in Loyola history.

Polevaulter Denny Ligenfelter claims that he is in the best shape of his career. In the broadjump freshman Phil Pierpont and sophs Bill May, Jim Smith, John Kleim, and Jim Burns have gotten off some fine leaps. Highjump veterans Dan DiPaula and Ligenfelter are lavish in their praise of Augie Kyper and Charlie Cherry, newcomers to that event. In the weights, veterans Bill Smuck and Rick Campbell, along with Len Klein, have looked very good in workouts. The Hound field team is ready for Towson and a Loyola win.

FLASH!

The Hound stickmen smashed Ohio State, last Tuesday, by a 15-8 score.

Shooters Second In State Match

By winning their last two matches, Loyola's ROTC shooters placed second in the State Championship Tournament. After losing to Western Maryland, Loyola beat Morgan 1374-1313 and Hopkins 1357-1348. Western Maryland won the tourney with a 3-0 log; Loyola was second with 2-1, Hopkins third with 1-2, and Morgan last with 0-3.

The 1374 score against Morgan was the top Loyola score for the season, and only one point shy of the school record of 1375. The scorers for Loyola in that match were Jim Smith (278), Paul Schlick (278), Nathan Tinanoff (275), Jim Abraham (273), and Dennis Homberg (270).

In two weeks, the rifle team will travel to Potomac State in West Virginia for a Saturday morning contest, and then end the season against Georgetown in a home match. Both of these teams were early season victims of the Loyola shooters. The record now stands at a respectable 5-8 after the squad dropped four of its first five starts.
